

Executive Advisory

Our Executive Advisory practice offers executives and general counsel access to an experienced in-house executive who can advise private and public companies at any stage of development on a variety of legal, business and operational matters.

Brett Pletcher provides his clients the perspective of someone who deeply understands the in-house corporate environment. He has nearly 30 years of experience working with rapidly growing companies that range from early-stage start-ups to large cap, multinational businesses. Brett can advise executives at companies ranging from those that have no internal legal team to those that have well-established legal organizations.

Our practice offers new and experienced general counsels a trusted sounding board for their thorniest challenges and day-to-day stewardship.

