

ECP Growth Co-Leads Shipday $7M Series A

Client News

November 17, 2025

Gunderson Dettmer represented client ECP Growth, a leading growth stage investment firm focused on products, solutions and technologies across the consumer value chain, as a co-lead investor in the $7 million Series A financing of Shipday.

Designed for restaurants and other local retailers, Shipday's global delivery and logistics technology platform enables merchants to manage direct delivery orders efficiently while maximizing profitability and improving customer loyalty.

With the new capital, Shipday will deepen its investments in new platform features and integrations, agentic AI automations and an expanded geographic reach, furthering the company's goal to offer instant access to modern delivery automation solutions to businesses of all sizes across the globe.

In the announcement of the transaction, Jeff Emmons, Director at ECP Growth, said, "In an increasingly digital-driven marketplace, Shipday's mission of empowering SMBs to reach more customers through scalable logistics solutions resonated deeply with ECP's investment approach. Shipday's AI-enabled platform is purpose-built to drive efficiency, mobility, and resource efficiency and to create sustainable value for businesses as they scale. We're excited to co-lead this investment alongside Ibex, and we look forward to working closely with the Shipday team to expand the platform's impact."

The Gunderson deal team was led by Sam Feldman and included Rishika Jikaria, Aliya Sanders and Emily Miller.
