

Multitude Insights Secures $10 Million Series A

Client News

February 27, 2026

Gunderson Dettmer represented Multitude Insights, a public safety technology company building modern intelligence infrastructure for law enforcement, in its $10 million Series A financing. The round was led by Primary Venture Partners with participation from Commonweal Ventures, Counterview Capital, VSC Ventures, NEC Orchestrating Future Fund, Alumni Ventures, E62 Ventures, and Craig P. Abod of Carahsoft Technology.

The company will use the new capital to scale BLTN (pronounced “bulletin”), its secure, AI-powered intelligence sharing platform that helps agencies to distribute and analyze critical information across jurisdictions in real time.

“Officers shouldn’t have to dig through emails or call neighboring departments to find out if someone else has seen the same suspect, vehicle, or pattern,” said Matt White, CEO and Co-Founder of Multitude Insights in the announcement of the transaction.

“These professionals are most effective when they’re out in the community, not stuck behind a computer. BLTN gives agencies one secure place to publish and search crime bulletins and other critical intelligence, so the right information actually reaches the people who need it, with zero effort.”

The Gunderson deal team was led by Ibrahim Elshamy and included Angela Griggs and Vard Danielyan.
